

What line you crossing today?

The question is: how bad do things have to get before you will do something about it? Where is your line in the sand?

Michael Badnarik